PAIN PHYSICIAN OVERVIEW

Pain Physician, the official publication of the American Society of Interventional Pain Physicians (ASIPP), is published bi-monthly in January/February, March/April, May/June, July/August, September/October, and November/December. In addition, Pain Physician publishes special topical issues each year. These issues might cover ethics, health policy, practice management, opioid guidelines, etc.

Pain Physician is a peer-reviewed, multi-disciplinary journal written by and directed to an audience of interventional pain physicians, clinicians, and basic scientists with an interest in interventional pain management and pain medicine.

Pain Physician presents the latest studies, research, and information vital to those in the emerging specialty of interventional pain management — and critical to the patients they treat.

Pain Physician was first published in 1999 to create a forum for scientific and clinical developments in interventional pain management and to take an active role in promoting regulatory changes, compliance, and practice management in an increasingly complex health care environment. The journal has been selected for listing on the Thomson Scientific's ISI Web of Knowledge. In addition, Pain Physician is listed in Excerpta Medica, EMBASE, Index Medicus, Medline, and PubMed.

The growth and success of Pain Physician reflects the outstanding work of a large number of physicians and scientists dedicated to the advancement of interventional pain management. Today, interventional pain management is a recognized medical specialty with its own identity and representation at state and national levels. Physicians practicing interventional pain management are referred to as interventional pain physicians regardless of their primary medical specialty (e.g., pain management anesthesiologist, pain management neurologist, pain management physiatrist, etc.). This spirit of unity among the various component specialties has helped foster an environment conducive to the promotion of scientific and clinical innovations.

The journal is published on a bi-monthly basis to furnish subscribers with more timely information.
